Driving Patient Engagement through the Integration of Health Equity, Social Drivers, and Whole-Person Care
Primary Care Development Corporation

Integrated care, often hailed as the gold standard for treating patients with complex physical, behavioral, and social needs, is frequently cited. Patient engagement is deemed crucial for appropriate care delivery. Organizations must grasp the essence of providing integrated care to support whole-person care. Ways to utilize the social-ecological model for patient engagement and care optimization will be covered in this session. Social needs screening tools will be reviewed, highlighting how data capture related to social drivers of health engages patients and informs responsive and equitable care planning and delivery. Attendees will be presented with examples of interventions, systems, and programs that have effectively engaged patients to support whole-person care.

SESSION 4

Future-Ready Leadership: Navigating the Changing Landscape of Healthcare Coleman Associates

Amidst continuous transformation in the healthcare industry, a forward-thinking approach must be embraced by community health center leaders. This session aims to empower leaders by equipping them with specific knowledge and skills necessary to navigate the ever-changing landscape. Strategies for fostering adaptability, building data-driven organizations, and embracing innovation will be explored. Attendees will be guided on how to ensure their health centers remain at the forefront of healthcare delivery in an era of evolving technologies and patient expectations. Additionally, insights from forward-thinking leaders nationwide will be shared, showcasing initiatives aimed at preparing organizations for anticipated future developments.

SESSION 5

Sliding Fee Discount Utilization Analysis FORVIS

Chapter 9 mandates that a health center's sliding fee discount program must be evaluated at least once every three years, as stipulated in Element L. The center must collect utilization data to assess the rate at which patients within each discount pay class, including those at or below 100 percent of the FPG, access services. This data, along with other relevant information, is utilized to gauge the program's effectiveness in reducing financial barriers to care. Identified changes are then implemented as necessary. HRSA recognizes this compliance area as needing improvement and collaborated with NACHC to develop a Sliding Fee Discount Utilization Analysis tool. In this session, attendees will discuss the requirement and learn how to utilize the tool effectively to ensure Health Center Compliance.

SESSION 6

Equity of Pay and Career Advancement Opportunities NACHC

The health center movement is underpinned by the principle of reflecting the patient demographic within the workforce. However, mere representation isn't adequate for ensuring workplace equity and retaining diversity. To attain this goal, health centers, akin to all organizations, must track and be held accountable to equity metrics. Two pivotal metrics are equity in pay and career advancement. This session will detail the structuring of pay scales, conduct of pay equity analysis, and interpretation of data. Insights will be gleaned from health centers that have implemented pay equity analysis and career advancement programs, offering attendees valuable firsthand perspectives on fostering equity within their organizations.

Day Two Wrap-Up Session

As an add-on, registrants will have access to the following recorded sessions!

Implementing AI-enabled chatbots for patient engagement SaNDAI Global

This course centers on the implementation of AI-enabled chatbots to elevate patient engagement within healthcare settings. Participants will be instructed on harnessing chatbot technology driven by artificial intelligence to furnish personalized assistance, disseminate information, and enhance patient communication. Upon completion, participants will possess the skills necessary to effectively deploy AI-enabled chatbots, thereby augmenting patient engagement in community health centers. The insights gained from our collaboration with Capital Area Health Network CHC will be integrated into our presentation, enriching the learning experience with real-world examples and practical applications.

By the end of this training participants will be able to:

- Identify key considerations in designing and developing AI-enabled chatbots.
- Familiarize themselves with strategies for collecting and integrating patient data into chatbot systems.
- Understand how chatbots can support appointment scheduling, symptom assessment, medication reminders, and health education.

Creating a Fund Development Plan to Support Strategic Planning CohnReznick LLP

Long-range strategic planning is mandated for Health Centers at least once every three years. While these plans may outline expansion goals, crafting a robust fund development plan is crucial. Such a plan, incorporating program, clinical, and operational leadership, strengthens the value proposition, facilitating diverse funding streams. This session will delve into strategies for data collection and translating daily operations into a campaign strategy to attract funders. A framework will be presented for creating a fund development plan aligned with strategic initiatives. Partnering with the Community Health Center of Richmond, examples will illustrate how this framework drives a proactive fund strategy, harmonizing with the Health Center's strategic plan.

By the end of this training participants will be able to:

- Understand how program and operational leadership can inform an effective value proposition to support strategic initiatives.
- Utilize resources provided to develop data collection strategies to quantify value in a way that various funders will find compelling.
- Create a fund development plan that aligns with their Health Center's strategic plan to support financial sustainability of initiatives.

Building a Project Management Office (PMO): Tools & Approaches for Success Facktor & Eisner Health

Effective project management tools and approaches play a crucial role in determining project outcomes, stakeholder satisfaction, and timely facility openings. The session, co-presented by Facktor and Eisner Health, will highlight best practices for building and managing a Project Management Office (PMO), handling organizational project portfolios, and ensuring project success through adept use of management tools. Tailored to support community health centers, objectives include transforming existing PMOs into high-value entities, central or hybrid project management, aligning projects with strategic plans, enhancing transparency and cross-departmental collaboration, and fostering a culture of punctual, budget-conscious, and scope-compliant projects. Attendees will gain actionable insights to elevate their project management capabilities.

By the end of this training participants will be able to:

- Understand the value of implementing a formal Project Management Office in a community health center.
- Discover and apply standard approaches to building and sustaining a project management office.
